DETAILED REPORT

BELLA COOLA AGENCY

The principal Reserves of the Bella Coola Agency were visited by the Commission and meetings with the Indians held during the period of August 16th to September 5th, 1913, Mr. Agent Fougner being subsequently examined at considerable length and on several occasions as to the Reserves of the Agency, conditions obtaining thereon, and land requirements of the Indians.

It is to be noted in connection with the Bella Coola Agency, the Indian population of which is 1,511, that the characteristics of the Indians and their occupations of maintenance are widely dissimilar in different sections, the natives of the coastal territory being fishermen almost exclusively and their land requirements fishing stations of small area, village sites and reservations requisite for wood supply; while the Agency population of the Interior, now that hunting and trapping are no longer to be depended upon for livelihood, are farmers and stockmen who have made a promising beginning in their new fields of activity.

The distinctive and contrasting requirements of the Coast and Interior Indians of the Agency explain the character of the new Reserves constituted and established, these numbering 46 in all, with an aggregate area of 7,050.60 acres.

The Ulkatcho Indians having made representations to the Government that their Reserve of 4,385.00 acres allotted by Mr. Commissioner Vowell in 1901 contained barren land from which it is impossible to make a livelihood, and having asked for new allotments in place thereof, the Commission carefully investigated, and, finding the Indian position sustained, cut off the major portion of this large Reserve, i. e., 4,065.00 acres, creating other Reserves in place thereof which it is hoped and believed will be of more substantial use to the Indians.

The total area of the 65 Bella Coola Agency Reserves described in the Official Schedule of 1913, is 22,667.93 acres, or a per capita acreage for the Agency of fifteen. As a result of the Commission's work and decisions, 64 of the established Reserves have been confirmed, their areas aggregating 18,592.93 acres. Reduction of the area of Ulkatcho Reserve and non-confirmation of Kitisa Reserve of the Kitimat Tribe, the area of which was found to have been Crown Granted at the time of its tentative allotment, lessened the total Agency area by 4,075.00 acres. There are contained in the 46 new Reserves established by the Commission 7,050.60 acres, making a net area increase for the Agency of 2,975.60 acres, and giving a new total Reserves area of 25,643.53 acres, or 16.99 acres per capita.
